

The Australian Criminal Intelligence Commission (ACIC) delivers the National Police Checking Service (NPCS) to Australian police agencies and other organisations who are accredited. As an Applicant, you have the right to dispute your police check result if you believe it is incorrect. The following process will be followed, which starts with you contacting the organisation that requested your check, to advise them that you wish to dispute your check result.

